Two young lads in alley rummaging through waste paper box. An observer stopped to inquire the purpose of such diligence, and ventured the inquiry as whether Santa Ana wasn't likely to have a new store. The boys disclaimed such an intention. They did reveal the purpose of their search. They wanted tin foil. They could get money for it. And money buys malted milks and candy bars.

Harold Young, one of several Hollywood movie directors, has a young son. Age 12, to be accurate. He likes almond bars. The firm printed on the wrapper a request for "helpful hints," and when young Young suggested they put in more almonds, the management returned the information that they had been putting up the candy bars for years and without complaints. It was then the scintillating critic took a come-back. "If you can't take it, why ask for it." Being in the almond growing business myself, I have a warm spot in my heart for Harold's youthful and discriminating offspring.

There's no place to stop, apparently, when the decision is made to take a holiday. One of these days when I have time and inclination, and if I think I can do the subject justice, I'm going to write a story on "The P. P. P. Pleasure." The topic was suggested by an observation Saturday forenoon. Two young women dressed for the beach, with two small children packed in the back of a roadster, without rumble seat. Some one told the lid up—not off—and the four plus two on the front seat, were merrily on their way to the water front. The seashore possesses an irresistible pull when you have to go to such inconvenience for such a limited amount of pleasure.

The golden jubilee edition of The Oceanside Blade-Tribune, in magazine form, 38 pages of it, has been delivered with the rest of the morning mail. It describes the progress of Oceanside from the time it was a "proto-intent mess" to the beautiful thriving city it is today. I wasn't in Oceanside 50 years ago. I was in Iowa, where Editor Harold Beck was, but it was his dad who printed the paper, assisted by Charley Needham, as I recollect correctly. It was the old Centerville Citizen. Centerville was the home of Francis Marion Drake, who was good enough to get the Iowa vote for governor. Then there was some fellow around that section who raised so many hogs the movie directors went out to take a picture of the hogs and the owner. Think his name was Bradley. But what's that to do with the splendidly edited and illustrated golden jubilee edition of the Oceanside Blade-Tribune?

And then the fem friend gave me a personally conducted tour across two intersections, and left me with instructions to get along the best way I could, plus some additional verbiage.

It just seemed like an adult clash to a juvenile setting. The motive power for one of those ice cream carts had reached the age better than half a century. He didn't pursue that anyone should take the joy out of life, so far as he was concerned, so peddling a cart and puffing a pipe brought to him the fullest measure of contentment. I couldn't help but think what ambitions he may have planted in the hearts of the young whom he served. Oh, well, after all, it isn't a far cry from an ice cream cone to a puffing, pulsating, pestiferous pipe. They put an old hand on young shoulders mighty early these days.

In those institutions where thirst is quenched signs are on display giving warning that the place will be closed election day. How do I know? Well, I can read, can't I?

Pamphlet Writing Checked

Working night and day to solve the "Fools Rush In" criminal libel mystery, district attorney's officers pressed closer to a solution today in the charges and counter-charges which have blazed for the past week.

CLIPPINGS STOLEN
Dist. Atty. W. F. Menton announced the following developments:

1. A photostatic copy of testimony in the 1923 Channing Follette bribery case in Los Angeles, used in publication of a second pamphlet linked with the first one, was the identical copy taken from the Los Angeles district attorney's office Aug. 9 by Deputy Sheriff G. F. McKelvey and returned the next day.

2. Three clippings of newspaper stories of the Follette case, reproduced on the second pamphlet, were stolen from the files of the Los Angeles Times by a man whose identification is now being checked.

HANDWRITING STUDIED
3. Charges by one candidate attacked in the first pamphlet that "gamblers" issued it were refuted, Menton saying he was convinced "other interests" were responsible for the libelous circular, and that those interests had money to spend on it.

4. Samples of handwriting by McKelvey and several other persons were being compared by a Los Angeles expert with handwriting found on the printers' copy of "Fools Rush In."

"My men have been working night and day on this case," said the district attorney. "We have some very strong suspicions, but as yet we have not completed a chain of legal evidence which would justify us in making an arrest. As soon as we have that evidence, we will prosecute to the fullest extent of the law—no matter how important those responsible may be."

WILD RUMORS
Investigator Robert Sandon and Deputies J. E. Walker and Robert Gardner have spent the greater part of their time during the past week on the pamphlet case; and Walker and Sandon were in Los Angeles again today. The pamphlets, ordered by the same man, were printed by Burt Harwick and Robert Elliott, now under arrest for criminal libel.

"It may have been suggested that I have evidence as to the authorship," said Menton. " . . . and that I am not making public evidence. Is it reasonable to suppose that, if I had sufficient evidence . . . I would not avail myself of the advantage to be gained by a solution of this case on the eve of an election? There is a wealth of rumors and suggestions and wild guesses, but these do not constitute legal evidence . . ."

Menton said that allegations by George Holden, candidate for district attorney, attacked in the pamphlet who signed criminal libel complaints against the printers, charging that "gamblers" were responsible was "preposterous."

If gamblers were responsible, Menton asked, why were Judge H. G. Ames, Franklin G. West, and Elmer Guy given high ratings? "Does Mr. Holden mean to insinuate that these gentlemen are all in league with the gamblers?" he asked.

DEFENDING champion Johnny Goodman is exempt from nation-wide qualifying sectional rounds to be held Aug. 30.

Interest Widespread in Journal Song Title Game

Santa Ana Journal readers are taking widespread interest in the song title contest.

The reasons are simple. First, perhaps, comes the novel, interesting nature of the game. The entire family can join in working out the correct title for each picture. A picture will appear daily in The Journal.

The first prize is $100 in cash—and that's pretty good pay for a few minutes of interesting play every day.

HITLER MAKES SURPRISE VISIT TO BORDER AS FRENCH MANEUVER

STRASBOURG, France. (AP)—A surprise visit by Chancellor Adolf Hitler to the French-German border, at a moment when French troops were about to begin maneuvers on fortifications today brought the tense international situation into new prominence.

Hitler suddenly appeared at Kehl, just across the Rhine frontier from Strasbourg, at 9 p. m., accompanied by a staff of generals taking inhabitants on his own side of the frontier so much by surprise they failed to have out the usual welcoming flags.

For Three Weeks in Row, Amount of Bank Money Going Into Trade Gains

WASHINGTON. (AP)—High officials of the federal reserve board expressed confidence today that the vast credit expansion sought by the Roosevelt administration has begun.

The trend of bank loans to finance business and industry, they said, has turned definitely upward for the first time since last October. The last three weeks brought higher reports of commercial, industrial and agricultural loans in banks of 101 leading cities.

The officials declined, however, to forecast how fast the $3,000,000,000 of lendable funds in the

U.S. Japs Dispute Gunboat

HONG KONG. (AP)—A serious dispute over the rights of a United States gunboat in China waters under Japanese control was reported today from Kiukiang, 135 miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow, by authoritative sources.

The dispute concerned the gunboat Monocacy, which was shaken and showered with water but not damaged by the explosion of two mines 80 yards from the gunboat's anchorage at Kiukiang on Saturday.

PROTEST REJECTED
A protest by Commander Lieut. C. V. Conlan, a reliable informant said, was rejected by the Japanese vice-consul, who in effect contended that foreign warships were in battle areas at their own risk.

Lieut. Conlan was understood to have countered that he was holding the Japanese responsible for any mishap resulting from Japanese operations, or from mine explosions, especially since the Nippon navy was sweeping the river continuously.

The Japanese were said to have refused to permit the Monocacy to proceed down river to Shanghai, and it was understood the Kiukiang vice consul suggested foreign warships at Hankow proceed up river.

FOOD, FUEL LIMITED
The gunboat Oahu was under orders to relieve the Monocacy and was to have left Nanking Sunday for Wuhan, but was held by a final decision by Washington on the Kiukiang situation.

It was stated by the Kiukiang informant that the Monocacy had a coal supply for one week and food for two; that Japanese had offered both coal and food but the Monocacy refused the offer maintaining a right to navigate the Yangtze freely, since Japanese transports and merchantmen were doing so.

GUINNESS READY
The two mines which shook the Monocacy released two additional mines which drifted by dangerously close, but without exploding.

Machine gunners of the crew, regularly 46, stood ready to fire them should they swerve toward the ship. One and a half hours before the incident, Japanese sweepers had completed systematic operations a few hundred yards upstream from the Monocacy's anchorage, at the Standard Vacuum Oil company wharf.

CHINESE CLAIM WIN
SHANGHAI. (AP)—Chinese asserted today they had cracked the Japanese offensive on the north bank of the upper Yangtze river, recapturing three important towns in invaders won in six weeks of bloody fighting.

The towns were Sienhsan, Taihu and Susung, north of Kiukiang and about 135 miles down river from Hankow, China's provincial capital.

The Chinese also said they had cut off Japanese advance forces at Hwangmeh, spearhead of the Japanese drive up the north bank, and now were attacking the town.

STOCK PRICES DROP SHARPLY

NEW YORK. (AP)—The European uncertainty resulting from the German-Czechoslovak crisis today precipitated a sharp break in prices on the New York Stock exchange.

Leading issues were down $1 to $5 or more a share.

Hardest hit were United States steel, Bethlehem steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, Anacosta copper, Kennecott copper, slightly McVillie, Eastman kodak, Westinghouse, Douglas Aircraft, Phelps Dodge copper and Owens-Illinois.

Comedian Abusive; Wife Gets Divorce
LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Venita Varden Oakie, testifying that comedian Jack Oakie was "jealous, quarrelsome and abusive," won a divorce today in superior court.

She said Jack's violent temper and sudden rages caused her to become ill and that on one occasion she had to go to a hospital for her nervousness.

247 Names on Orange Co. Ballot Tomorrow; Votes in State to Total 2,400,000

Party Lines Broken Down By Contests

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—California's rough-and-tumble pre-primary election contest, in which more than 800 candidates, largest field in the state's history, are seeking the votes of a record-sized electorate, ends tonight.

The re-entrance of President Roosevelt in the campaign with a $300-a-week pension plan was one of the latest developments. The pension plan is not on the ballot in tomorrow's election, but Roosevelt-indorsed Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo is battling for the Democratic renomination against a strong champion of the proposal.

PARTY LINES CUT
Various sharply contested issues, that have cut across party lines, and in some cases lapsed into personal attacks against candidates, added zest to the election, in which 3,454,058 persons are qualified to vote. About 70 per cent, or more than 2,400,000, are expected to vote.

The Democratic party has a registration of 2,052,519, while the Republican party has 1,246,773.

Nominees will be picked for the United States senate, 20 seats in the house of representatives, the governorship, the lieutenant governorship, 80 seats in the state assembly, 20 odd seats in the state senate, various other state offices and numerous county offices.

PENSION PLAN
President Roosevelt gave his indorsement to Senator McAdoo many months ago.

The President's statement, issued Hyde Park, N. Y., several days ago, criticizing the $300-a-week pension plan, was taken up in Los Angeles by Sheridan Downey, McAdoo opponent, who has indicted the $300-a-week proposal.

Downey challenged the President's statement that enactment of the plan would assess a tax on all the people.

A report in Washington, D. C., by the Sheppard senate committee that federal internal revenue employees had contributed voluntarily but unlawfully to campaign committees working for McAdoo, drew a statement from Peirson M. Hall, campaign manager for Downey, that the report confirmed "charges I have made of coercion" of federal employees in the interest of McAdoo's campaign.

Hall declared the report was "doubly significant" by reason of Sheppard's indorsement several months ago of McAdoo's candidacy.

CZECH CRISIS STIRS BRITAIN

LONDON. (AP)—The British ambassador to Germany, Sir Neville Henderson, handed to Premier Chamberlain today a personal report on Berlin's present attitude and intentions in the increasingly dangerous Czechoslovak minorities dispute.

The ambassador's sudden return to London and a summons to cabinet ministers to meet here Tuesday were foremost in the crescendo of events over the weekend.

Chief of these events was the British government's warning, voiced by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, Saturday, that Britain might not be able to hold aloof from war in central Europe.

DeMolay Degree Awarded to Four

The highest degree conferred in the Order of DeMolay, that of chevalier, was awarded four Santa chapter members at a ceremony conducted Saturday night at San Bernardino civic auditorium.

Abe Bergsetter, Richard M. Bradley, Warren K. Mann and Thomas R. Trawick, all of Santa Ana, were four out of 37 DeMolays of Southern California honored with the degree that is awarded for exceptional chapter work.

Charles Emory Wright, active grand council member, officiated at the rites, which were attended by more than 500 people.

Traffic Deaths Reduced by 22%
CHICAGO. (AP)—The National Safety council announced today that 4320 lives were saved on the nation's streets and highways during the first seven months of the year. The decrease was 22 per cent compared with the same period of 1937.

Two Tests of New Deal at Polls Tuesday

By the Associated Press
Democratic senatorial primaries in South Carolina and California will bring a double test of administration strength tomorrow, for President Roosevelt has indicated his favorites in both contests.

Senator William G. McAdoo of California received President Roosevelt's endorsement last month. Mr. Roosevelt made it clear last night that he preferred nomination of Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina to a sixth term for Senator Ellison D. Smith, who has fought some administration measures.

S. F. STRIKES GROW; CLERKS DUE TO QUIT

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—San Francisco's industrial crisis, already marked by 150 warehouse and liquor plant closures, grew graver today as retail clerks called "quit," snapshop of Surpau seu action" against 27 major department stores.

The meeting of 7000 retail department store clerks unionists was set for Wednesday night.

Larry Vail, union leader, denied the session was to discuss possible revision of demands. "We will consider final action—interpret that as you like," he said.

The central labor council will meet tonight to debate giving strike sanction.

This troubled labor front, combined with the warehouse situation, contributed to the most serious labor crisis here since the 1936 waterfront strike.

"It's hard to control a forest fire," said James Reed, spokesman for the Warehouse Industry Employers.

More than 150 warehouses and liquor rectifying plants have been closed and additional ones were expected to shut their doors today in a "hot cargo" dispute between operators and Cio warehousemen.

As a result of the distributing industry paralysis, more than 2000 workers were idle.

In the background, also, was the possibility of a break between employers and CIO longshoremen over renewal of the waterfront contracts next month.

Reed, president of the association of San Francisco distributors, saw the possibility of a complete shutdown in the warehouse business.

Strike Ties Up British Factory

BIRMINGHAM, England. (AP)—Six thousand workers were forced into idleness today by a strike in one of England's largest aircraft factories.

Workers in one section of the Austin airplane factory walked out, forcing all of the plant's activities to suspend.

SHERIFF RACE WARM
Headliner of the election campaign is the race for sheriff, which was relatively quiet until a week ago. Sheriff Logan Jackson, seeking a third term, is opposed by Jesse L. Elliott, veteran Santa Ana constable, and Police Chief James Pearson of Fullerton. L. M. Guyon of Garden Grove, former Orange theater owner, also is on the ballot.

The sheriff's race became heated with circulation of "Fools Rush In," anonymous pamphlet "grading" candidates for county office. It endorsed Jackson and attacked Elliott; and Elliott supporters have attempted to link Jackson's office or supporters with its publication.

FOR SUPERIOR BENCH
Other spirited contests: For superior court judges, Incumbent James L. Allen is opposed by Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison and Attorney Franklin West in department two; and Incumbent H. G. Ames is locking horns with Attorneys James B. Tucker and James L. Davis for the department one judgeship.

Polls to Open At 6 A.M. and Close at 7 P.M.

A candidate for every precinct—and one to spare!
That's the array of names which will face Orange county voters tomorrow when between 35,000 and 50,000 of them cast ballots in one of the heaviest populated primary elections in history.

Voters in the county's 246 precincts will find a total of 247 names on Republican and Democratic ballots alone, with a dozen more appearing on tickets issued to minor-party registrants.

6 A. M. TO 7 P. M.
Balloting starts at 6 a. m. and closes at 7 p. m. in the county's 246 polling places, with a relatively heavy vote expected.

Republican state ballots include 29 names; Democratic lists show 70 candidates for state offices. Fifty-two names will appear on the non-partisan side of ballots—including county and township offices and state superintendent of public instruction.

Thirty-eight candidates for constables' and justices' jobs will appear on ballots in the county's 11 judicial townships, and 58 names will be before the voters for election to Republican and Democratic county central committees.

FOUR UNOPPOSED
Santa Ana voters will find four unopposed candidates on their ballots for county offices. No opposition developed for County Clerk B. J. Smith, whose office is handling the Herculean task of running the election, County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson, and Howard C. Cameron, Santa Ana attorney, running unopposed for justice of the peace.

Assessor James Sleeper, veteran of a quarter-century in his office, will be unopposed on the ballot and is assured of an almost-unanimous endorsement despite the last-minute written aspirations of Tom Danson, young newcomer and former radio announcer.

Heated contests will be decided in most other sections of the ballot.

C. I. O. Faces Split; Auto Workers Threaten to Secede

MARTIN, LEWIS AT ODDS OVER PEACE MOVE

DETROIT, (AP)—The widening breach between Homer Martin and John L. Lewis presaged today the possibility that President Martin and his adherents in the United Automobile Workers might secede from the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The break between Martin and Lewis, CIO chairman, came into the open over the week-end when each side took a significant step. The first was Lewis' dispatching to UAW locals a plea to support his proposals to restore harmony in the divided union; the second was the request of a group of regional UAW officers that the international executive board cease sending monthly per capita taxes of 5 cents to the CIO.

Said Lewis in the letter to UAW locals: "The controversy which has divided your organization is weakening it in the face of the wage-cutting drive of the employers and has become a public scandal which affects not only your welfare but the welfare of the whole CIO."

Reiterated Martin in a press conference: "The CIO would do well to follow our example in cleaning our house, and clean its own before interfering with us."

"I will not turn over the international NAW to John L. Lewis," Martin had said earlier.

Last week, after conferring with Martin and with the four expelled international officers of the union who lead the Martin opposition, Lewis proposed a truce which called for reinstatement of the former officers until next fall's biennial convention.

The anti-Martinites accepted it; Martin said he would place it before the executive board without recommendation.

A regional conference of UAW local executives in Wisconsin, Minnesota and northern Illinois met in Milwaukee last night at Martin's call and, presided over by him, adopted a resolution condemning the Lewis letter and proposing discontinuance of dues payment to the CO.

MRS. MURRAY DIES
OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—Mrs. W. H. Murray, 63, wife of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, former governor, died last night.

More About Election

Dist. Atty. W. F. Menton has five opponents to meet, all of them contesting for two places on the Nov. 8 general election ballot. They include Elmer Guy of Brea, George Holden of Anaheim, Joel Ogle, Maxwell Burke and A. P. Nelson of Santa Ana.

Three supervisory races—second, fourth and fifth, will see hot contests decided at least partially tomorrow.

Largest flock of supervisory candidates developed against N. E. West of Laguna Beach in the fifth district. West is opposed by Lloyd Claire of Newport Beach, Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa, James McKeever of Laguna Beach, J. W. Sauer of Tustin and Dan Mulherson, mayor of San Clemente.

Chairman Willard Smith is opposed in the fourth district by L. A. Bortz, Orange rancher. Supervisor John Mitchell of Garden Grove has opposition from Willis Warner of Huntington Beach, and Mayor Elmer Hughes and Ernest Mose of Seal Beach.

LAMB IN CONTEST
J. C. Lamb, seldom opposed as tax collector, has an opponent this year in Orin W. Sisson, Orange service station owner.

County Treasurer T. E. Stephenson, seeking elective public office for the first time, is opposed by A. J. Cruickshank, former Santa Ana banker.

Surveyor W. K. Hilliard is opposed for re-election by Nat Neff, civil engineer and former county highway superintendent.

Coroner Earl Abbey is opposed by Dr. J. G. Bernke, whom he defeated in 1934, and R. E. Crowley, attorney.

DISTRICT BATTLES
Constables and justices of the peace races are heated in several townships. Local interest was focused on a contest between incumbent Charles Mitchell and Deputy Sheriff R. E. Steinberger, in Santa Ana township, where there will be but one office to fill this year instead of two, as previously.

Nearest contest for a justice's position is in Orange township, where incumbent Cal Lester is opposed by Deputy Sheriff David Fairbairn of Olive and Elmer B. Deupree of Silverado canyon, former publisher.

State election contests hold secondary interest for most Orange county observers with the exception of Democratic and Republican wheelhorses.

Five candidates—Raymond Haight, George J. Hatfield, Z. S. Leymel, incumbent Frank Merriam and Francis Michael O'Connor—appear on the Republican ballot, and eight—John F. Dockweiler, Haight, Herbert C. Legg, Daniel C. Murphy, William F. Neblett, J. F. T. O'Connor, Culbert

Gov. Merriam Endorsed by Mayors of Four Cities

TO THE PEOPLE OF ORANGE COUNTY:

As the chief executives of four of the principal cities of Orange county, we have, during the past several years had occasion to approve the attitude of Governor Merriam toward local government.

In relations between our cities, the county and the state administration, we have found Governor Merriam to be eminently fair and to have a clear understanding of the problems of our local governments.

CITY TAX BURDEN RELIEVED

This is evidenced by his prompt and timely aid given our outfall sewer system after the flood. The state's contribution of $90,000 to sewer repair made possible the immediate rebuilding of the system.

Governor Merriam further demonstrated his interest in the city government by supporting and signing the bills appropriating to the cities of the state a total of one-half cent per gallon of the state's portion of the gasoline tax. This relieves local taxpayers of a large burden of street improvement and maintenance costs.

COUNTY TAX BURDEN RELIEVED

Gov. Merriam's generous allocation of $200,000 for flood damage reconstruction on the Santa Ana river has materially relieved the tax burden of Orange county. Furthermore it has contributed much to future public health and safety.

The governor has been a steady and dependable friend of the public schools and has taken an active part in the development and maintenance of the school system. He has consistently supported a program of state financing of local school costs.

As mayors of respective cities, we appreciate the fine service he has performed for the state in the management of its fiscal affairs and we particularly admire his accomplishment in balancing the budget. We commend him for wiping out a large depression deficit.

In the interest of the State of California, we join heartily in endorsing Governor Merriam for renomination and re-election.

The Santa Ana Breakfast club will "salute the ladies" next Thursday morning when it stages its big open air breakfast program in Santiago park on North Main street. The colorful event, starting at 7:30 a. m., will be a ladies' day affair, said President Hale Barker today.

"We will be honored to welcome the women," Barker went on. "They will have a chance to see their husbands 'ribbed' and to see them do a little ribbing themselves. The six acts of vaudeville will be interesting to everyone. Committees are working enthusiastically. Also, we will be happy to welcome members who have been away on trips."

"The breakfast is open to the general public, too, and we are urging a big attendance."

Tickets are available at the Foster-Barker Music store, 309 N. Broadway, at Straw Bros., 1609 N. Main, and at Kenrok Press, 303 N. Sycamore.

Vic Soper is in charge of the program, while Hunter Leach and Bob Anderson are the breakfast committee. Howard Straw, Barney Koster and Roch Bradshaw are the ticket committee.

QUITS STATE RACE

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Milton Byron, withdrawing from the race for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, today supported the candidacy of Mrs. Marye Shannon Harrington of Los Angeles.

EARLY BIRD Henry Hofer, village blacksmith in Pleasant Valley district of Sharsburg, Pa., muffed his anvil-clanging with a cork padding after neighbors protested that his activity at 5 a.m. kept them from getting their sleep.

LOAN POLICY TOLD BY BANK PRESIDENT

Commenting upon recent nationwide discussion regarding innovations in bank lending practices, A. I. Mellenthin, president of the First National bank, pointed out today that ever since the bank was established in 1886 it has sought to give every legitimate banking facility to Santa Ana and vicinity.

Mr. Mellenthin referred to a letter recently sent to all banks by Orval W. Adams, president of the American Bankers' association, which said "Where propositions are received which are apparently unbankable, let us explore every possibility of making them bankable," and explained that new types of deposit and lending services have been supplied by the First National bank when they were needed by local people, business and industry.

"Our bank is as anxious to make loans as the local merchant is to sell his merchandise, because loans are a bank's stock in trade," said Mr. Mellenthin. "However, a bank must keep constantly in mind that its first duty is to its depositors. We must never lose sight of the fact that we are lending our depositors' money and have agreed to pay it back on demand. Therefore, we must be sure the loan will be repaid. We frequently receive application for credit that cannot be granted in their original form; then we try to make it possible for the loan to be made in some other form and still reach the objective of the borrower."

Mr. Mellenthin disclosed that reports from all over the country say that general business has shown steady improvement during the past two months. One recently published index on California business indicated that conditions in the state had reached 97% of the 1923-25 average, in July, advancing from a low of 91.9 in April 1938.

W. T. LAMBERT

Auditor

A Thought for Voters

"The nearest thing there is to providing business administration for our government is to put business men in office. Opportunities come to the voters to save themselves money in taxes at least by selecting qualified business men at the polls, but too often the people do just the opposite. Some thought on this subject should be given by every voter and at least by every voter who pays taxes.

"While this is probably truer in connection with the board of supervisors, it enters into practically every county office. The Lord knows that if there ever was a time when there should be business judgment in the operation of government, it is now. Voters have an opportunity to think this over before casting their ballots in the August 30 primary."—Brea Progress.

This timely editorial by Mr. Sarchet, editor of the Brea Progress, should be taken seriously by all thinking voters.

The California Taxpayers Association rates the county auditor as one of the most important of the official family. Never has experience and business training been more necessary in order to cope with the many problems which daily arise in this complicated office.

More than 25 years' experience gained in banking and newspaper management has enabled me to successfully and efficiently meet the responsibilities of the office. My record stands unsurpassed for prompt, accurate service and for giving the utmost courtesy to everyone who enters my office. It is on this record that I request your support and that of your friends at the primary election August 30.

Catholic Persecution Charge 'Nonsense,' Nazis Announce

PROTECTION OF CHURCH HELD HITLER'S AIM

BERLIN. (AP)—A propaganda ministry spokesman today branded as "nonsense" charges made by Germany's Roman Catholic hierarchy in a pastoral letter that efforts were being made in Germany to destroy the church.

"All one has to do," the spokesman said, "is to compare what the German state has done for the Catholic church. The government is paying millions of marks annually to the church and the fact that the reading of the letter was possible clearly demonstrates that there can be no talk about persecution."

The government itself has the most earnest desire to protect the church from anti-religious demonstrations."

As evidence of this he cited the fact that the government had banned a number of publications adhering to an anti-religious policy.

Answering the bishops' charge that "unparalleled, ugly, concentration attacks and outrages" were used against Bishop Johann Sproll who was expelled from Wurtemberg last Thursday, the spokesman said the Nazis had acted solely to protect the bishop.

"Sroll, who was a German citizen, violated one of the fundamental principles of German citizenship by not participating in the April 10 plebiscite (on union of Austria with Germany)," he declared.

The letter, formulated at a recent conference of bishops at Fulda and read from pulpits yesterday, did not mention the Nazis by name.

It appealed for cessation of the "battle against Christendom because this very strife is causing a deep rift among the German people" and declared thousands of Catholics were asking whether they still were "citizens with equal rights notwithstanding their avowal of the common weal and fidelity to the state."

Assailing unnamed personalities for attacking in "a damaging manner" the personal honor of Pope Pius, the letter said "we German bishops stand behind him all the more closely and faithfully when he suffers for our sake."

It recalled the church had outlasted all strife for 2000 years and prophesied it would endure in the future.

Schrock officiating. Interment will be in Fairhaven cemetery.

HEINANDREZ—Henrietta C. Hernandez, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecilia Hernandez, died Aug. 28. Funeral services will be held from the family residence, 2515 South Main street, Tuesday morning, at 9 a. m., with Winigber Memorial chapel in charge. Interment will be in Santa Ana cemetery.

HUSTED—Fred J. Husted, 61, died Saturday at his home in Santa Ana. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Birdie Husted, of Santa Ana; one sister, Mrs. Nellie M. Schneider, of San Francisco; six step-children, Alva McDonald of San Gabriel, Albert McDonald of Chicago, Alva Mitchell of Santa Ana, Helen Cram of Pico and Harold McDonald of Los Angeles. Announcement of funeral arrangements will be made later by Brown and Wagner.

MONAHAM—Mary E. Monahan, 74, died at her home, 291 Palm avenue, Balboa, yesterday. She is survived by one son, Carl A. Monahan, and a daughter, Ruth Genevieve Monahan, both of Balboa; a sister, Mrs. Annie Jordan, of Santa Ana, and a brother, Alick McCarthy, of Grand Falls, Canada. Recitation of the Rosary will be held tonight in the Catholic church, Newport. Requiem mass will be tomorrow morning, with Father William Fox officiating. Interment will be in the Holy Sepulcher cemetery.

Friend supplies the tempting information that there is an island somewhere in the Pacific that beats relief. Two can live cheaper than one so long as the natural food supply lasts. There are no modiste or sartorial experts. You wear what you can get if you can get it. Nature supplies both food and clothing. There isn't anything to disturb the harmony of the day or night, unless a wandering WPA happens along. That interference won't impair the pleasure of the habitation to any extent. About all he'll do will be to put up a sign.

And then there was the fellow who borrowed two race tickets which he agreed to return in a stamped envelope the same day. The tickets served their full purpose. The other part of the agreement failed.

Vote early tomorrow. Vote. How, that's your business. And it is your business to vote. We have too many people who are too indifferent to this privilege, but who are entirely too diligent complaining about things which happen and which they do not try to prevent.

And most of us can remember when political elections in Orange county were a friendly contest. Now they are surcharged with innuendo and insinuations and ugly charges and imputations against characters, and a lot of other extraneous matter irrelevant to qualification and fitness. Wonder when and where the new and dirty system originated?

What Does the Record Say?

TO THE PEOPLE: In the campaign just closing, I have presented my record to the people of Orange county, because I believe that to be the honest way to seek office. It is the only way in which a candidate's qualifications can be measured.

Any honest candidate will submit his record, rather than claims, promises or accusations.

The record is especially important in choosing a sheriff. The county must know the candidate's attitude toward law enforcement in general and, just now, toward the gamblers in particular.

What, then is his record? How many arrests has he averaged? How many gambling devices has he seized? With whom is he allied in the campaign?

The county must know how he will meet such crises as riot, flood and earthquake. What is his record? Or has he any record? Who, then, knows what he will do in emergency, when responsibility rests squarely upon him alone?

Has he the business ability to administer so large an establishment as the sheriff's office and county jail, economically and with profit to the county? If he has no record, then who knows?

Promises, or statements of generalities, may be made to sound impressive, but there is no meat in them, and they make a poor substitute for the record, being likely to leave the public unsatisfied as to the candidate's willingness and ability to perform as well as he can promise.

That is why I present my record. It is a record covering all of the matters referred to, all of which have happened in this county, and at least some of which are sure to happen again, which makes their consideration pertinent.

I pledge that, if re-elected sheriff, I will continue to enforce the law and preserve order. But you must look to my record to inform you whether I am likely to keep that promise.

I pledge unceasing and relentless opposition to the gambling interests. My record must be your guide in judging whether I will perform what I promise.

You already know that record. Your own officially authorized investigators, the grand juries, have examined it year after year, and have given you their unbiased, impartial report. It has been observed and reported to you, also, by other unbiased sources, such as the attorney general of the state of California.

What I say about my record matters nothing. What my opponents say about it matters nothing. I would like to help my own cause. They would like to hurt it. But there has been made available to you exact and authentic information on the record, which, in justice to yourself, you should study.

With this final message, I leave my case in your hands, content to abide by your decision, whatever it may be.

I Just Found Out About Orange County Drivers' Licenses

By MILLARD BROWNE

You'd think they'd be on their best behavior, but some of the strangest things happen when drivers are taking their tests for a license. . . cut-corners, improper turning, even reckless driving and an occasional crackup.

License examiners (Don Squires and Tom Welch do the examining for Orange county) actually take their lives into their hands when they go out with nervous, often times careless applicants to see how well they can drive.

In Orange county, 1000 to 1200 drivers get licenses each month. Two-thirds are renewals, and applicants merely take a vision test, swear to new affidavits, the other third are classified as new applicants, include former drivers who have let their licenses expire for more than a year.

And there are quite a number who haven't renewed their licenses since 1931, when the first two-year licenses expired. (Before that licenses were good until revoked, and those issued from Jan. 1, 1927, to Aug. 13, 1929, never have been revoked.)

All new applicants must take a written test, are allowed one mistake in 25 questions (on fundamental traffic laws), a vision test (to pass, you have to see something at 20 feet that a normal person could see at 50) and a driving test.

More people "flunk" the driving test than any other, and many of those turned down claim they've driven for years in the same way (despite frequent errors they commit).

The driving test includes a left turn on a blind corner, and a big number of the drivers who take the test cut the corner. Lots of other drivers make improper left turns (from the right-hand lane) when they're coming back to the highway patrol office at the end of the test, and there have been numerous near-accidents because of it.

Failures in driving tests, Squires points out, rarely are caused by inability to handle the car, and drivers almost never speed on a test. On careless, dangerous little points, though, they tend to drive by habit, often make serious errors. "We take time to show people their errors, and they'll usually admit they'd swear at anyone else who did the same things," the examiner remarks. This is particularly true of drivers who omit the proper arm signals.

Main idea of the license examinations: To make sure motorists can drive safely. If they can't, it's the examiner's job to show them their faults so they can correct them. And if they can't learn, it's the examiner's duty to refuse them driving privileges. The drivers' license division, separate from the highway patrol as a branch of the department of motor vehicles, is more concerned with ability of motorists to drive safely than with prosecution of law-breakers.

Rejections are rarely sent in on failure to pass first tests, however. They're just for vision that's so poor it can't be corrected, for anyone afflicted with epilepsy, paralysis or insanity, or for those who still fail after repeated testing.

Applications denied for failure to pass tests are "held" in a "hot" file, and applicants must repeat the tests later. People who fail the written test can come back next day, if they want, to take it again—but they'll get a different set of questions.

Temporary licenses (as valid as permanent ones) are issued immediately to everyone who passes the driving test (it isn't given until the written test has been passed); permanent licenses are forwarded later from Sacramento.

In case you're a visitor from some other state and hold a valid adult license in that state, you don't need to apply here until you've been in California a year. If your regular California license has expired, though, you're committing a misdemeanor (don't be afraid to go and ask for another, however, because the license inspectors aren't "cops" and won't arrest you).

Applicants must appear in person to take license tests, though every day a few busy people send proxies to take care of a renewal, likewise it won't work. Applicants whose licenses have expired for more than a year are warned that they'll have to take another driving test.

Minors must have their applications signed by both parents (if they're both alive and both have custody). Parents' signatures must be notarized, and that isn't just a gesture, either, because parents' signatures make them liable up to $11,000 for accidents. In the old days, some youngsters forged their parents' signatures, but examiners don't find any attempts at forgeries now that affidavits must be notarized.

Since all citations and warnings issued by police and highway patrolmen are forwarded to the department of motor vehicles and put on license-holders' records, drivers sometimes are called in

Huntington Beach Oil Charges Involve McCallen, Bonelli

'TANK BOTTOM RACKET' TO BE PROBED

Charges in the state tideland oil scandal, involving M. M. McCallen, mayor of Huntington Beach, William G. Bonelli, member of the state board of equalization and other prominent men, were turned over to Dist. Atty. W. F. Menton today for investigation and possible criminal action.

Menton today received from the state personnel board, where charges are pending against Carl Sturzenacker and A. H. Alexander, suspended state land department employees, copies of complaints and exhibits in the case. Sensational charges against McCallen and C. M. Rood, Huntington Beach oil men, were contained in complaints filed against Sturzenacker and Alexander by Norris J. Burke, special investigator.

McVicar and Rood, Huntington Beach oil firm, is accused in the complaints of having paid $500 to Joe Rosenthal of Los Angeles, alleged lobbyist high in state administration circles, for "efforts" in behalf of a redrilling permit for the Vicaroo well at Huntington Beach. Menton received a photostat copy of a $500 check allegedly signed by Rood and of a "memorandum" allegedly sent by Rosenthal to the firm billing it for the amount.

Alexander, formerly in charge of the Huntington Beach office of the division of state lands, was accused of having a "close friendship" with McCallen to the extent that McCallen went on a note signed by Alexander at a bank. Alexander, it was alleged, failed to report the "tank bottom racket" in which one man allegedly was implicated by purchasing, according to the complaint, good quality oil at the same price he would have paid for muddy, sediment-filled oil from the bottom of oil tanks. This buyer is alleged to have shipped good oil as "tank bottoms" during the time good quality oil was under an NRA prorate order.

Alexander is alleged to have told producers that if their customers refused to accept increased production, that "this buyer would take it as tank bottoms."

One employee, according to Burke's complaint, broke state seal on an oil tank, withdrawing oil from a tank when oil was flowing from a well into the other end of the tank, thus draining oil without making a record for the state.

When Alexander was notified that the seal had been broken, Burke alleges, he merely notified the buyer and took no further action. Sturzenacker, according to Burke's allegations, got together in 1937 with Bonelli, since appointed to the state board of equalization, and a candidate for election. Bonelli at that time allegedly represented "parties" who wanted to discuss the extension of an easement for drilling into a new tideland pool near Twenty-third street, Huntington Beach. Bonelli's clients, according to the complaint, were given permission to drill 60 new wells into the tideland pool; but Sturzenacker later is accused of denying to his superiors that the permit had been issued.

Menton said he would inspect the voluminous files sent him today, and would "take whatever action is indicated." Criminal charges might result if evidence of truth of Burke's assertions is produced.

for re-examination, or even for suspension.

Suspensions are most likely to be for habitual delinquency or recklessness; re-examinations are most likely to be for such offenses as repeated warnings for improper turning, or other carelessness that might indicate ignorance of the law or of safety rules.

AUTO THEFT STARTS WILD POLICE CHASE

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—When thieves last night stole an expensive automobile owned by Dr. Fred Earel of Balboa Island, they precipitated one of the wildest chases in police history here, eventually escaping when they almost wrecked one of the Newport radio cars.

The automobile was reported stolen at 9:30 p. m. A few minutes later a radio car sighted the machine heading toward Corona Del Mar. As the driver saw the police, he whipped the stolen car up a sidestreet and headed toward the Coast highway. All available radio cars immediately were called to the chase, with the first car in hot pursuit.

On the Coast highway at the Bay Shore bridge the officers overtook the speeding machine, but the driver again eluded them when he made a daring right-hand turn again traffic, narrowly missing crashing into a number of cars. When the police also tried the maneuver their brakes failed and the light machine slid sideways, almost overturned and finally stalled facing the opposite direction.

When the police machine was in operation again, the stolen car had disappeared, but searchers found it a few minutes later, abandoned at the Cliff House, above Newport Bay.

LOCHINVAR IN RAGS

by KATHRYN CULVER
Copyright 1938 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Julie Hamilton, small-town Southern girl, has drifted into a half-hearted engagement to Kenneth Terry, but she longs for romance with a capital R. When he comes under the spell of Isolda Fleming, glamorous visitor from New York, Julie is indifferent. On the day before her birthday, a handsome young tramp faints at her back door. Reviving, he says he is Barry Caldwell, from the West, and is hiking to New York for a radio audition. Julie puts him up in the garage, and asks him to her birthday party, providing him with clothes she steals from Kenneth. She says she wants him to pose as a rich rancher and to play up to her, in order to make Kenneth jealous, but the real reason for her invitation is that she has lost her heart to him. At the party, he plays his role so perfectly, that she wonders if he is in earnest. Finally, when he sings to her as she is playing the piano, she impulsively kisses him before all her guests.

CHAPTER VIII
FOR an instant, Julie felt Barry's lips hungrily responding to hers. Then, to her surprise, he pulled away from her and jerked erect. She became aware of bantering laughter and shrill whistles. She looked around, and saw that those near by who had witnessed the kiss were loudly applauding.

Her face flamed. What had made her do such a crazy thing! Not that she regretted the feelings that prompted her impulsive action. But to have made an exhibition of herself before her guests! Of course, they quite evidently viewed the kiss as mere flirtation but, just the same.

She looked up at Barry. She saw, with a shock, that his face was grim.

"Well," he muttered, so that only she could hear. "I hope you're satisfied—now that you've made a complete fool of me—and provided amusement for your friends!"

He turned abruptly and, striding to the French windows, disappeared into the darkness outside.

Julie stared after him in dismay. How could he have misunderstood? How could he have thought that kiss was just part of the game? How could he fail to realize the truth?

Her friends were crowding about her with jokes and laughter. Fleetingly, she caught a glimpse of Kenneth across the room, gazing at her in stupefaction.

Then, swiftly, she rose and, brushing past those who surrounded her, made for the French windows and plunged out into the night in pursuit of Barry.

SHE caught up with him out near the garage. "Wait!" she gasped, catching hold of his arm. "Don't go away!"

"Why not?" His voice was harsh. "Haven't you made your young man sufficiently jealous? It seems to me we've carried the farce far enough!"

"But—but . . ." She stopped. What could she say to him? She realized, suddenly, that she could not very well tell him the truth—could not shamelessly confess that she had kissed him because she had fallen madly in love with him. Not unless he . . .

"Come here and sit down," she said, drawing him toward a bench in the garden. "Why should you have minded that little kiss? Everything was going wonderfully, and then, all of a sudden, just because of that, you got mad! Why?"

He sat down beside her and, resting his arm on the back of the bench, leaned toward her earnestly. "Tell me why," he said. "I thought it would be easy to explain to you as you asked me to. But—but Julie—the trouble is, I wasn't play and when you kissed me . . . well, that finished me. I had to get away. You see, Julie, I've—I've—fallen in love with you."

Well-Known Families Are Joined By Marriage Rites

The impressive beauty of the new First Presbyterian church was background for another of the summer's most important weddings late Saturday afternoon when Miss Betty Graber Hawk, petite daughter of the Chester Hawks, and Duncan McCall Harnois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Harnois, were joined in matrimony at services conducted by the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, family pastor of the Hawks for many years. Masses of giant shaggy white dahlias set the keynote for the all-white nuptials, interspersed with the formal design of palms, and at each pew down the aisle which marched the bridal party was a single dahlia blossom carried by a white satin ribbon.

Miss Hawk, who, as well as the bridegroom, has spent the greater part of her life in Santa Ana where she has been prominent in school and social circles, was exquisite in a model gown of lace over net. Its full skirt trailed just a few inches behind her, and its bodice was fashioned with quaint square neck. A fingertip veil fell over her long tight sleeves from a tulle halo, and she carried a lovely little white prayerbook belonging to the groom's sister, Mrs. Russell Sullivan. From this fell a shower of bouvardia.

Her sister, Miss Marian Hawk, was maid of honor, wearing a demure frock of crisp white Swiss flecked with pale blue dots, and made with bouffant skirt and full puffed sleeves. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Gordon McHatton (Iona de Raymer) and Mrs. Raymond Todd (Dora Tedford), wore frocks identical save that their pattern was in pale pink. Each wore a white straw bonnet tied beneath the chin with velvet ribbons that reached the long hems of their dresses, and each carried a sheaf of pastel garden flowers.

Creston Harnois of Whittier attended his brother as best man, and ushers were Bruce Harnois, Russell Sullivan, William Hawk, and Emmet Thompson. Mr. Hawk gave his daughter in marriage, and the ever-impressive double-ring ceremony was used.

The bride and groom, with their parents, received the several hundred friends present in the church foyer, with Miss Hawk wearing a gown of brown net accented by rose begonias, and Mrs. Harnois in mahogany crepe with yellow begonias.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Harnois left on a northern honeymoon, while the bride and groom will make their home in Burbank where he is a teacher in the city schools. Both are graduates of Santa Ana high school, Santa Ana junior college, and Occidental college.

Friday evening was held the couple's formal rehearsal of the wedding, and preceding it Mr. and Mrs. Hawk entertained the entire bridal party, with husbands and wives, at a buffet supper. Included in the guest list were Jean Baldwin Hoard, a schoolmate of the bride, who was a vocalist during the wedding, and Halstead McCormack, another close friend, who officiated at the organ.

Yesterday they and their hostesses were joined by other members of the Van De Walker family in a picnic supper at the park. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Van De Walker, and Laura and Harold. PLAY STARTS AT PADUA

The Mexican Players are busy at Padua Hills theater rehearsing "Rancho Tapatio," their next play, unique in that it contains a short moving picture of Mexican life. Charles A. Dickinson, who is directing the play, says that he has seen a play within a play, a movie within a movie, and even a play within a movie, but never before has he heard of a movie within a play.

It is through the villain's showing of some of his own film that the audience, as well as the players, comes to realize that he is not exactly what he pretends to be. And it is through the quick thinking and quick acting of some of the boys of the Rancho that he shows the wrong roll of film and thereby betrays himself.

"Rancho Tapatio" is a romantic comedy of the region around Guadalajara, Mexico, and promises plenty of fun and fun, the routine of the ranch life being noticeably enlivened by the coming of a romantically inclined visitor from the city. This is the region of the Jarabe Tapatio, perhaps the best known of all Mexican folk songs which will be featured. The Mariachi orchestra with the big base guitar or "guitaron" is also typical. The opening date is August 31 and the play will continue through Oct. 15 each Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening with matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

Stitching Is Accent

Rows of blue stitching accent collar, cuffs and belt of this summer frock whose white rayon fabric is indicative of an outstanding fabric trend. An embroidered bouquet on the shoulder contributes bright color. More stitching appears on the brim of the soft blue hat.

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

By MOLLY HARVEY

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of weekly book reviews of current publications which will appear each Monday in The Journal

(Courtesy Public Library)

Any biography of a living man is bound to be the center of controversy, and when the book concerns a man who has as many powerful enemies, on the one hand, and as many blind worshippers on the other, as has Franklin Roosevelt, the controversy will grow out of all proportion to the value of the biography as a piece of literature or as interpretation of a personality.

It would be hard for any American to read Emil Ludwig's "Roosevelt" and maintain a detached, impersonal attitude. But Ludwig is an European, and if he views the President and the present regime in the United States through rose-colored glasses, let us concede that in contrast with most European countries, America is still the Promised Land, and the so-called bloodless revolution taking place here is not to be compared with events in the rest of the world.

A student of men, the author has come to believe that fate plays a part in shaping the lives of those who become great, and finds Franklin Roosevelt no exception to this creed. Ludwig speaks of him repeatedly as "the child of fortune," "the darling of the gods" and "a man of destiny." His solid, well-to-do ancestors linked him forever to the land so that he was to have an understanding and a sympathy for the problems that dealt with the backbone of our nation. Roosevelt's inherited wealth gave him security so that he was never to be tempted by compromise or graft; instead of facing the necessity of daily bread and butter he was to use his time and energy preparing himself for the great things ahead. His distant kinship with Theodore Roosevelt, who had traveled to high places, was a constant inspiration.

His marriage to a woman with a deeply developed social consciousness broadened his own love of humanity. But more than any one other event, the severe illness which overtook Roosevelt in his prime was to mold his latent forces. Drawing on reserves of patience and determination which surprised his close associates, Roosevelt conquered the dread paralysis and proved to himself he could conquer anything.

Thus, in external events, Ludwig follows the pattern of Roosevelt's life, and in the President's personal characteristics finds the same guiding hand of destiny. That determination, considered downright Dutch stubbornness by those who have had to deal with it, the author sees as nature's compensation against his extreme amiability. The President's vacillation, his willingness to rush into new ventures, is, according to the author, an admirable ability to experiment. Is it not better to try than to do nothing? Perhaps Roosevelt has turned traitor to his class, but Ludwig quotes from Goethe to prove "It is better that you take a stand against your class."

The author believes that only if a general war breaks out before 1940 will Roosevelt be elected for a third term, but under no condition is he seeking to establish a dictatorship. How does Ludwig know this? Why, Roosevelt told him so.

Boulevard Home Is Party Scene

The particularly attractive new home at 2417 North Park boulevard into which Mrs. F. W. Wiesseman and her daughter, Miss Helen, moved early in the month, has been setting for several intimate little housewarming parties during the past several weeks, most recent of which were two week-end affairs.

On Friday evening they received Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McCready of Glendale and Miss Marie Jarrett of Hollywood as their guests at dinner.

On Saturday the cool terrace with its borders of bright colored flowers in the patio was made festive with gay Japanese lanterns and a table loaned by Mrs. A. W. Gerrard was set with vivid pottery and zinnias for supper.

Chinese checkers occupied part of the later evening hours in conjunction with dancing on the cement-paved yard.

Guests for the pleasant affair, with Miss Wiesseman, were Miss Muriel Matzen, Miss Virginia Kern, Miss Anne Detweiler, Harry Motley, Clarence Hamilton, Andrew Wilson, and Charles Warner.

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This column deals with Townsend news and views. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, under date of Aug. 23, 1938, has issued an appeal to all Townsends, no matter in what political party registered, to go to the polls to-morrow and vote for candidates to public office who are known to be solidly in favor of the Townsend party ideals and the Townsend National Recovery plan. I quote briefly from the message of the doctor, which appears in today's issue of "The New Era," with his signature in facsimile attached:

"It is imperative that we one and all get behind the candidates who are solidly in favor of our party ideals and the Townsend National Recovery plan."

"I urge all loyal Townsends that, whatever the cost to them may be, to go to the polls on Aug. 30 and cast their ballot for our candidates of the party they are registered in, and make it your particular business to see that your friends do not forget that it is election day. If necessary, take them in your car, or walk with them to the polls to be sure they get there. Advise your friends who our candidates are."

"For the benefit of Townsend voters, this column tonight is quoting instructions which have been issued by Townsend National Representative Glen S. Wilson for the state of California as how Townsends should vote in tomorrow's primary election if they want to best serve the Townsend cause. Cut this column out and you will be able to use it in casting your vote."

"To the members who are registered in the Townsend party:

"For governor WRITE IN the name of FRANK F. MERRIAM."

"For lieutenant governor vote for Genevieve L. A. Shaffer."

"For state controller vote for William McLaughlin or Harry B. Riley."

"For attorney general vote for Walter E. Barry."

"For United States senator vote for Sheridan Downey."

"For congressman from the 19th California district vote for C. T. Johnson."

A large number of the Townsend voters are now registered in the Democratic party, and Glen S. Wilson has issued the following instructions to such voters:

"For governor WRITE IN the name of Frank F. Merriam."

"For lieutenant governor vote for Genevieve L. A. Shaffer."

"For state controller vote for William McLaughlin or Harry B. Riley."

"For attorney general vote for Walter E. Barry."

"For United States senator vote for Sheridan Downey."

"For congressman from the 19th district WRITE IN the name of C. T. Johnson."

The instructions which have been issued to Townsend voters who are registered in the Republican Party are as follows:

"For Governor vote for Frank F. Merriam."

"For Lieutenant Governor vote for Genevieve L. A. Shaffer."

"For State Controller vote for Harry B. Riley."

"For Attorney General Write In the name of Walter E. Barry."

"For United States Senator vote for Ray L. Riley."

"For Congressman from this district vote for C. T. Johnson."

The above information has been given for the purpose of informing Townsends registered in the various political parties who are the Townsend endorsed candidates now seeking public office. As Orange county's Townsend organizer it was my duty to pass the information on to you. If you will follow the advice given by Dr. Townsend and Glen S. Wilson, as Townsend national director of California in casting your votes tomorrow you will aid the Townsend cause.

Robert S. Crowley, Santa Ana attorney and candidate to the office of Public Administrator County Coroner of Orange county came to the writer's home Saturday afternoon stating that he thought he had been somewhat mistreated in the meeting held on Saturday evening, August 20, in Townsend hall over which J. H. Walsh presided. It seems that while introducing others who were running for county offices that Mr. Walsh failed to introduce Crowley who has been an advocate of the Townsend Plan for the last three

GAS RATES TO BE STUDIED

City Attorney Lew Blodgett of Santa Ana and other city attorneys of Orange county were invited today to attend a railroad commission conference on rates and service of the Southern Counties Gas company.

President Ray C. Wakefield of the commission issued the invitation today, announcing the group has begun an informal investigation of the company's operations, in line with its policy of frequent examination of the earnings of California utilities.

The conference of city attorneys from cities served by the corporation will be held before Wakefield in the state building in Los Angeles Friday, for the specific purpose of affording an opportunity for the presentation of suggestions for possible changes of natural gas rates, rules and regulations.

$25,000 Smuggled In Bale of Hops

HARWICH, England. (AP)—How a German refugee smuggled $25,000 out of Germany in the middle of a bale of hops was told today by customs officials here.

The anxious consignee met a German hops shipment personally, they said, claimed the money hidden in tubes inside one of the bales and headed for Kenya Colony in East Africa.

years. Crowley seemed to interpret this as denying to him the Townsend endorsement.

The writer explained to Mr. Crowley that Mr. Walsh was only giving his personal endorsement to the candidates being presented as he is not vested with any authority to represent the Townsend movement in Orange county in the endorsement of candidates. It was explained that as a newspaperman and as an individual Mr. Walsh has the same right as any other American to endorse for public office whom he pleases but that is as far as his authority goes. Townsend voters are free to vote for any of the candidates who are running for county offices.

Mrs. W. L. Campbell writes to state that the Fullerton Club No. 1 will hold a business meeting at 7:30 this evening in the Ebell Club building at East Chapman and Harvard avenues with Walter R. Robb of Santa Ana present to explain the political situation to those present.

Clever Girl Makes Job for Herself Where Many Fail

There seems to be an answer to every question. Even to the one that stumps so many girls—

"How can I find a job in a city where jobs are scarce?"

The answer we heard today is "Make a job for yourself." And that is exactly what the slim young girl who gave the answer has done.

She hasn't made herself just one job, she's taken over a thousand and one, or at least, so you'd judge from the name of her business, "1001 Services, Inc." And so you would be convinced from the ready list of services she starts counting off when you say "Time three."

The girl—young and pretty, but very business-like—is Margaret

Cram of Brattleboro, Vt. But she likes New York, and that accounts for "1001 Services, Inc."

She'll find out any kind of information for you or see that whatever you want done—gets done.

However, she won't find you either a hostess or an escort. She tried supplying escorts right at the beginning of her business venture, but her New England conscience kept saying, "suppose you make a mistake and hire the wrong escort?" So providing an escort is no longer one of the 1001 services.

But she does supply almost any other kind of order or service. Right now she is tracking down a hurdy gurdy for a woman in Kansas who wants it for her husband who thinks it would sound a gay note in the dedication of a new bridge. The hurdy gurdy must be a bargain.

And, without too much trouble, she found a cook for a hostess who wanted a strictly kosher meal for twelve.

She wasn't stumped when a man asked to have his mother-in-law met at the Grand Central station; when a clubwoman wanted a review of "Adam Bede" ready-made; when a restaurant manager asked her to find him an East Indian chef; when an actress demanded someone who could get her clothes on the complicated hangers of a new traveling bag in time for the actress to catch a train.

FINDS JOBS, TOO

One of the problems that is on her mind now is getting half a dozen silver spoons from a man in England to an American bride—address uncertain. The wedding was two years ago, but the problem has just been dumped in the lap of "1001 Services." Miss Cram has the teaspoons and the wedding invitation, and our guess is that the bride will soon have a belated gift.

This young woman's ingenuity not only answered the job question for herself but she is helping others to answer it. People read the sign "1001 Services" and think "well, maybe she can get me a job." She works with an employment agency on this angle—but she often has jobs to offer herself.

For instance, someone has to go out and find that hurdy gurdy. And it has to be a bargain.

(Copyright, 1938)

The waistline is the big asset for fall! When the "influences" have all been boiled down, and the mass of new fashions simmered into an essence, we find we need, more than anything else, a real small waist—

Even if you don't pay much attention to the 1900 influence—or the Edwardian—(what diminutive waists they had!) any good fall model sets up the same agitating argument. They have bloused tops and fullish skirts, so often, that what else but a small waist? One can't be swathed like an Arab! We women have to show our figure somewhere along the torso! Let's begin bending, girls! I don't see any other way out!

If you have a family album, there's where you will get a first-hand line-up on how you want to look this fall. See what mother wore about 1902—or look back a little further, if you can, to see what grandma wore in the gay nineties. But this Louis XIV business somehow doesn't seem so important. To us way out here in California. We might take on the full skirt and romantic, off-the-shoulder neckline for a formal gown. But after that, life in Ventura is so different from the court of Versailles!

The fall dressing game is a riot of fun. Half of us are frightened into silvery shivers at the idea of a hat no bigger than a corsage. And fancy wearing a feather boa! Oh yes indeed, we shall wear those too! Or think of a basque as snug as a swim-suit with legs—mutton sleeves that stick up on top or shoulders like toy wings! And it isn't the dowagers, now, who will wear the black velvet ribbons around their necks! What fun ahead of us this fall!

How can a sensible woman go marketing in feather boas—or drive her Ford to the dance in a hoop-skirt? That is what every sober-minded person is asking, and the answer is just plain "she can't!" But she can be alluring with a capital A in these same innovations when her husband takes her out to dinner—or the Hobnobbs entertain.

Statement of Fact Offsetting False Propaganda Concerning Mayor Dan Mulherron

The following is an extract from the Long Beach Telegram—
San Clemente, July 7, 1938.

(Works Progress Administration at Washington has absolved the City and Mayor Dan Mulherron as well as everyone else interested in the city government here, from any claim that WPA funds and work were transferred from other projects to the City Hall here. At one time WPA had filed a claim for $400.00 refund from the city for the asserted transfer, but last night the City Council received official word from Washington that it was all a mistake and that no blame or liability attaches to either the Mayor or anyone else here.)

The reason of Mr. Mulherron's resignation from WPA was because the manager for Orange County area was discontinued, when Los Angeles County, took over Orange County WPA.

SOUTHERN METHODISTS TO MEET HERE

The Santa Ana church was last host in 1928.

Bishop W. C. Martin, formerly of Glendale, will preside over the conference, which will make selections for delegates to the united Methodist conference in St. Louis next April and will discuss plans for uniting the three branches of the church. The three branches are Methodist Episcopal, M. E. South and Methodist Protestant.

Bishop Martin will also make new appointments for the California M. E. South pastors.

Subway Farewell May Cost One Life

7 INJURED ON ORANGE COUNTY HIGHWAYS OVER WEEK-END

FISHING BOAT
CASE SETTLED

LOS ANGELES. (P) — United States Attorney Benjamin Harrison said today an "amicable settlement" was being effected in libel actions filed against 25 alien owned fishing boats in Southern California waters.

Harrison said actions would be filed against 25 additional boats this week, however, in the federal government's drive to obviate possibility of the alien boats spying on the United States fleet, based here.

The libel actions, which are forfeiture suits, were not carried to conclusion, Harrison said, because he did not wish to disrupt the fishing industry and throw men out of work. Boat owners have cooperated in working out transfers of ownership, forestalling seizure.

Mother and Sister
Of Fanny Brice
Injured in Crash

HOLLYWOOD. (P) — Fanny Brice's mother and sister were treated today for serious injuries received in an automobile collision while en route to a swimming party at the film comedienne's home.

Mrs. Rose Brice, 62, was hurled to the pavement when her chauffeur-driven car was struck by another at a Hollywood intersection. She suffered a possible skull fracture.

Her daughter, Carolyn Brice, 38, was reported to have a broken shoulder.

STEEL ADVANCES

NEW YORK. (P) — Operations in the steel industry for the current week will advance 1.2 points to 44 per cent of capacity, compared with 42.8 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel institute estimated today.

DRUNK DRIVING
CHARGES FILED AGAINST FIVE

Seven persons were injured and five were arrested on drunk driving charges as a result of week-end accidents on Orange county highways.

Felony drunk driving charges faced Ed Villareal, 21, Bryn Mawr, after a three-car accident on Santa Ana canyon detour seven miles east of Olive Saturday evening.

Injured in the crash were Robert B. Knoll, 19, driver of another car involved in the collision; Ed Blackman, 18, Long Beach, a passenger in Knoll's car, and Raymond Davalos, 24, Bryn Mawr, a passenger in Villareal's auto. A third car, driven by Robert G. Peralta, 32, Casa Blanca, was slightly damaged in the crash-up.

Mrs. Robert Sparks, 39, 414½ West Fourth street, Santa Ana, was taken to the county hospital for treatment of injuries received at 6 p. m. yesterday on Santiago road between Black Star and Orange county roads 11 miles east of Orange. She was riding in a car driven by Herbert Monroe, 29, 414½ West Fourth street, when it was thrown out of control.

Mrs. Irene Gentry, 35, Long Beach, was injured, and Mark Gentry, 42, Long Beach, her husband and driver of the car, was booked on drunk driving charges after an accident on 101 highway a quarter of a mile north of the Galivan crossing at 8 p. m. Saturday. Gentry lost control when the car hit a section of highway that was under construction.

William C. King, 45, Irvine, was arrested on drunk driving charges as the result of a collision with a car driven by William Harry Cary, 34, Laguna Beach. No one was injured in the accident, which occurred on 101 highway near Culver's Corner at 7 p. m. yesterday.

In Anaheim, meanwhile, a pedestrian and a bicyclist were injured in two more accidents.

Charles E. Peddicord, 105 West Sycamore street, was hurt when assertedly struck by a car driven by Warren Nelson, 830 West Zeyn street, who later was arrested on drunk driving charges.

Francis Young, youthful bicyclist, sustained a bruised back in a collision with a car driven by Opal Comstock, 24, 414 South Claudia street, Anaheim, at 5 p. m. Saturday in front of the Comstock home.

Hollywood Speeder
Pays Fine of $13

A speeder and two boulevard stop violators highlighted City Judge J. G. Mitchell's police court session Saturday.

The speeder, William H. Byrne, Hollywood, paid $13 for driving too fast and failing to appear. Boulevard stop fines of $5 each were levied against Allen Raymond McKenzie, Los Angeles, and David Ramos, Costa Mesa.

K. A. Lasater, Santa Ana, paid $1 for overtime parking.

Man, 89, Denies Incompetence

Petition of Earl A. Miller for guardianship of Jose Fuentes, 89, an alleged incompetent, was contested in an answer filed in superior court today by Fuentes, through his attorney, Leo J. Friis.

The answer denied Fuentes' incompetence, asked that Miller's petition be denied, and that Emel Buell be appointed guardian in event the court finds Fuentes incompetent.

14 Rescues Along
L. A. County Shore

LOS ANGELES. (P) — Fourteen bathers, one of them injured by a fishing launch, recuperated today after being rescued from the surf at Los Angeles county beaches.

Marie Kahrs, 24, suffered cuts and bruises when the launch Viking struck her paddleboard in the Santa Monica yacht harbor.

With sultry 90 degree heat recorded yesterday, nearly half a million persons thronged the seashore.

Young Racer Killed
On Dry Lake Bed

BARSTOW, Calif. (P) — Youth's quest of speed cost one life on the racing sands of Harper dry lake yesterday.

A stripped-down, super-charged car, which had been timed at 102 miles an hour, struck a bump, careened and overturned, killing Herman E. Black, 21, Glendale.

The driver, 18-year-old Wilbur F. West, Glendale, suffered a brain concussion.

Uncle Sam Will Try to Boom
Postal Business in Month

September will be Greater-Use-of-Postal-Facilities month, Postmaster Frank Harwood announced today, as he went through a sheaf of promotional material from headquarters in Washington.

In a move to increase postal revenue, the federal postoffice department plans a vigorous publicity campaign to increase the use of first class mail and post-office rental box facilities.

A 10-point publicity campaign will include stressing of the advantages of first class mails, urging utilities and other companies to send bills through the mails, promoting mail soliciting from radio broadcast listeners, encouragement of the use of business reply cards, a "write a letter" campaign, booming of stamp books and stamped envelopes, boosting of air mail and special delivery, and encouragement of the use of greeting and scenic cards.

L. A. MEN HELD IN BOY'S DEATH

LOS ANGELES. (P) — "The boys were shooting out street lights with an air rifle and we decided to stop them."

This was the explanation attributed today by sheriff's investigators to Robert Bollinger, 46, and Robert Graham, 60, held on suspicion of murder in connection with the fatal wounding of 16-year-old Douglas German, jr., yesterday.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Mahoney said young German was riding in a milk truck with two other youths, who admitted peppering street lights with an air rifle.

Bollinger, Mahoney said, fired two shots from his rifle after the fleeing car to "scare them." Graham did not shoot.

Norma Shearer III
In N. Y. Hospital

NEW YORK. (P) — Norma Shearer, motion picture actress, was said by her secretary today to be undergoing treatment in Mount Sinai hospital for a "minor ailment."

The secretary, Winifred Kay, declined to discuss the nature of Miss Shearer's illness but declared no operation was necessary.

11 Killed on State's Roads
Over Sunday

LOS ANGELES. (P) — Death patrolled California's highways yesterday, taking toll of 11 lives.

Los Angeles, with seven dead, was the accident center of the state, a dubious distinction.

S. M. Marshall, 73, of San Diego, was fatally injured in an automobile collision near his home city.

Bert Fitzgibbons, 50, Atherton, was killed crossing a road near San Jose last night. Another pedestrian, unidentified, was killed earlier in a similar accident at San Jose.

A middle aged Indian woman, whose name was not immediately learned, was struck and fatally injured by a car near Davis.

The dead in Los Angeles included:

Joseph Castro, 50, motorist.

Mrs. Socorro Torres, 26, pedestrian.

Steven Pearson, 36, motorist.

Byron Lower, 21, Pasadena, motorist.

Joseph Macarray, 50, motorist.

Robert Haskall, 32, motorist.

Thomas R. MacLean, 68, pedestrian.

CITY, COUNTY TAX RATES TO BE SET TODAY

To the accompaniment of vigorous protests from a record number of taxpayers, tax rates will be set and 1938-39 budgets will be formally adopted for both the city of Santa Ana and the county of Orange by tonight.

County supervisors, scheduled to meet this morning, held over their budget-fixing meeting until this afternoon. The city council, meanwhile, planned to confer this afternoon prior to their open meeting this evening.

With a city tax rate increase of 21 cents and a county jump of the same amount indicated by preliminary budget estimates several weeks ago, increases appeared certain in the taxes today, although neither the city's proposed $1.80 rate nor the county's $1.02 rate for Santa Ana taxpayers ($1.06 in unincorporated areas) was expected to go through without curtailment.

Formal protests on the county's proposed budget already have been filed—each hinting at a taxpayers' revolt—by the Farm bureau, Property Owners' association and the County Taxpayers' league. A similar protest is scheduled to be filed with the city council by the Taxpayers' league today.

It was understood the city's overall tax rate may be retained at last year's $1.59 figure, instead of boosting it 21 cents, with the balance of the revenue being earned by a boost in the minimum water rates. Councilmen have taken no action on the proposed water rate increase, but it was believed a majority of them favor that means of financing outfall sewer construction costs on grounds it would be a "more equitable" distribution of the tax burden.

And once they have elected him, it is only common sense for them to keep him in their service.

Judge H. G. Ames has one of those common-sense records in Superior Court. More than 50 years residence in the county equips him for the common-sense appraisal of its problems as they come before his court. Thirty-five years in the law have trained and ripened mind and temperament. His twelve years on the bench have been a brilliant demonstration of judicial capacity.

Judge H. G. Ames
Office No. 1, Superior Court

THE LAST WORD

This is my final word to the voters of Orange county in this primary campaign.

During the preceding weeks I have at various times published my messages to the electorate, seeking to assist it in arriving at an appraisal of my candidacy.

I have tried to be fair and reasonable in my statements, to give the people information that might aid them in reaching a decision. I have hoped, of course, that their decision would be in my favor. But I have not tried to influence it by going outside of the record.

I have kept to the record because, in my opinion, the record is the only really informative factor in any choice among candidates.

I am going to state my record again, briefly. I am an attorney who has practiced in both state and federal courts. For 13½ years I have been judge of the county's most active court, a longer period on the bench than has been served by any other candidate for Superior court in this campaign.

In the 8½ years since my court was raised to higher jurisdiction, I have made decisions in 3800 cases. And I have had but 15 reversals. I submit that record.

In closing my campaign, I wish to say that I hold my opponents in respect, and now take pleasure in complimenting them on the clean and straight-forward campaign they have conducted.

Tomorrow it will not be the judge who decides. It will be the people.

DON BASKETBALL PLAYER WINS OHIO SCHOLARSHIP

Regular guard in basketball at Santa Ana Junior college for the past two years, Kenneth Marshall has been awarded a scholarship for the past 11 years, personally interviewed the Paul Wright

'WE WON'T GIVE UP,' ED ADAMS OF SALINAS SAYS
Failure to land on Santa Ana Jaycee's 1938 football schedule has not discouraged Coach Ed Adams of Salinas Jaycee. "We won't give up," the former Don quarterback said, before leaving for the North yesterday.

Last year, Adams scheduled our Dons, but tried all season to land a game with a town team in Hawaii. This year, he believes he will gain that trip to the Islands, but does not hope to schedule our Dons until 1939 or '40, he said.

McCarthy Praised as Yanks Appear Unbeatable; Cubs Threaten Giants, Pirates

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Now that the cheering for Messrs. D.M. McCarthy, Gehrig, Dickey and Ruffing has subsided, it's time someone went up to Manager Joe McCarthy, of those Yankees, thumped him soundly on the back and hollered: "Nice going, Joe."

The Yanks are rolling toward their third straight pennant. They look unbeatable. In mid-June they were anything but—tired, overconfident and just about fed up with this business of winning pennants.

McCarthy is a mild man. Sitting in his dugout yesterday, before the Yanks whipped the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 2, on only four hits—a trick accomplished by two homers by young Tom Henrich—McCarthy refused to be called a master tactician or inspiring leader.

"Why," said Joe, "I just keep my pitchers working as evenly as possible, don't let the boys get too cocky, and keep everyone happy. These fellows know how to play ball. I just keep them at it."

"The best manager in baseball? There are different standards. One is production. McCarthy has won four pennants, three with the Yanks and one with the Chicago Cubs, more than any other manager except Connie Mack."

While the Yanks beat Buck Newsome, and Ruffing chalked up victory No. 19, the National league clubs continued to back away from the pennant.

HITTING RACE HEATED IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Only one-tenth of a point separates Jimmy Foxx of Boston and Cecil Travis of Washington in the race for the batting championship of the American league. Foxx is hitting .352, Travis .351.

In the National league, Ernie Lombardi of Cincinnati has an eight-point lead over Phil Weintraub of Philadelphia, .347 to .339. Cincinnati's Reds, it seems, should be considerably higher in the standings, what with all that power they've shown this year.

In addition to Lombardi's batting lead, two teammates also are leading the senior circuit in three departments. McCormick has collected the most hits, 167; and also the most doubles, 35. Eyal Goodman has the most home runs, 28, although Mel Ott of the Giants is right on his heels with 27.

HOW MANY GAMES WILL IT TAKE THE OILERS?
How many games will it take Huntington Beach's Oilers to dispose of San Bernardino's Ponies for the National Nightball league championship?

Some softball critics believe the Oilers will win in four straight. Others, respecting the pitching ability of Fowler and Mayer, believe San Bernardino will carry Huntington Beach for six games. San Bernardino put up a brilliant fight in eliminating Santa Ana's Stars, yet few fans are giving the Ponies a chance to win the title.

The Chicago Cubs are having a stab at winning the flag. They whipped the Phillies, 6 to 5, in 11 innings, and then beat them again, 3 to 1, in the second game. This put Gabby Hartnett's men half a game behind the second-place New York Giants and a game and a half closer to the league-leading Pirates.

The Pirates wavered through a long, hot ball game with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and lost, 3 to 5, after failing to overcome a six-run lead piled up by the Dodgers in the first two innings. The Pirates now hold a four-and-a-half-game lead over the Giants, who beat the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 3, with Hal Schumacher bolstering the Giants' staff with a neat six hit performance.

At St. Louis the Cards split with the Boston Bees, winning, 5 to 1, and losing, 2 to 0.

Cleveland's Indians recovered sufficiently from their recent beating at the hands of the Yankees to shade the Washington Senators, 6 to 5. The defeat dropped the Senators into fifth place, for the Detroit Tigers downed the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3, in 10 innings, with Hank Greenberg hitting homer No. 45.

It was Connie Mack day in Philadelphia, and the Athletics responded by beating the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 4 and 7 to 2. Baseball's grand old gentleman was presented with a plaque between games.

H. B. INVADES COLTON FOR FIRST GAME

Inaugurating a four-out-of-seven game series for the National Nightball league championship, Huntington Beach's Oilers and San Bernardino's Ponies clash on neutral Colton field at 8:15 tonight.

The second game, slated for Wednesday night, also will be played at Colton, scene of all San Bernardino "home" games. The third game will be played Friday night—either at Huntington Beach or in Santa Ana's Municipal bowl.

Interest is strong in Colton and vicinity, and Manager Joe Rodgers of the Oilers decided to play where he could attract the larger crowd.

The Huntington Beach pilot indicated today he might start Elwynn (Fuzzy) Errington on the mound, although Venn Botts was ready to go the nine-inning route against Bob (Lefty) Fowler or Bud Mayer.

This year's finalists also reached the Shaughnessy playoffs last year, but Anaheim defeated Huntington Beach in the preliminary round and then took the championship with a brilliant showing against San Bernardino.

CITY'S NINES OPEN SERIES
After a lapse of two weeks from the City league softball campaign while the Elks and Eltit's International Trucks were going through their championship series, the other four clubs in the circuit go back into action tonight to determine the local representative in The Examiner's tournament.

The elimination tourney in the Municipal bowl will be a rush-order affair, since The Examiner's series opens Sept. 5, and entries must be made by mid-week.

Alliance Mutual Life and Tree-sweet products will start the proceedings at 7:30 tonight with Montgomery Ward and M. E. South playing the nightcap at 9 o'clock. Finals will be played Wednesday night.

LIONETTES IN GAME WITH PEPSI-COLAS

While the officials and clubs are doing their best apparently to keep them from winning the Major Girls' Softball league pennant, Orange's Lionettes come to grips with their three final opponents this week, meeting Pepsi-Cola's girls at Orange at 8 o'clock tonight.

Columbia Pictures, still supposed to have another game with the league-leading Lionettes, refused to go through with its final game, which was scheduled for Wednesday night.

League moguls have instead substituted for the Studio club, Young's Market, which has already completed its season's schedule with the Lionettes.

The Orange girls must defeat Young's to remain in the pennant fight. Bank of America plays the final game with Orange in Hollywood Friday.

Rain Storm Delays Cobb in Attempt at Speed Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, (P)—A rain storm forced the postponement today of John Cobb's attempt to break the world land speed record of 345.49 miles per hour set Saturday by Capt. George E. T. Eyston.

The storm started shortly after midnight and kept up intermittently, leaving large pools of water on the salt race course.

Reid Ralton, the designer of Cobb's car in the steel duel with Captain Eyston, said that if the weather cleared it might be possible to run tomorrow.

It was before Eyston made his record-smashing run, when the mark was only 311.42 miles per hour, that the 37-year-old Cobb described his car as the fastest in existence. If he takes over the record, Eyston stands ready to try to win it back.

Cobb's car, the "Railton," is of radical design. Powered by two 1250 h. p. broad-arrow type, super-charged Napier Lion engines, it has been described as everything from a teardrop to a button. Formerly entirely silver, its sides were painted black to facilitate the electric eye timing device used by the American Automobile association.

The "Railton," entirely streamlined, weighs 7000 pounds, only half that of the "Thunderbolt." It is four wheeled, as compared with Eyston's "Thunderbolt's" eight.

CRITIC GIVES AMERICANS 4 TO 1 EDGE

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, (P)—Much of the pressure is off as the American and Australian Davis Cup squads move into Philadelphia today to prepare for the five-match challenge round at the Germantown cricket club on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Even the most obstinate viewers-with-alarm are feeling considerably better since Don Budge and Gene Mako, this nation's fancy doubles combination, made soft pickings of the Australian duo of Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich in the finals of the national championships at Brookline Saturday, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

THEY SHOULD REPEAT
The nature of the victory indicated very strongly that Budge and Mako will be able to repeat the dose in their cup match next Sunday, and that, of course, means that the United States is a top-lofty favorite to keep the trophy won at Wimbledon a year ago.

It means that, with Budge a virtual clinch to win his two singles matches, the American team very probably can scrape through even if Bobby Riggs, its second singles star, should lose to both Quist and Bromwich. This observer still thinks the final count will be 4 to 1, with Riggs trimming Bromwich.

The week of practice at Philadelphia not only is designed to put the four members of the American team, Budge, Mako, Riggs and Joe Hunt, in top shape for the big match, but will provide the cup committee with an accurate line on future prospects. This is particularly important in view of the knowledge that the incomparable Budge will turn professional before snow flies.

At the Cup camp for a week's training an observation are a dozen of the country's most promising kids, chosen from 31 junior Davis Cup groups. All have been given special free coaching in past months, and the two or three who prove themselves outstanding this week will get some really intensive drill during the coming year.

JACK KRAMER LISTED
The group includes only one first ten player, Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, who is ranked ninth nationally. Frank Guernsey, Jr., of Rice Institute, National intercollegiate champion; John Kramer, sensational schoolboy prospect from California, and Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, are the other standouts.

Others in the cup kindergarten are Bob Kamrath of the University of Texas; Russell Robbitt of Georgia Tech; Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles; Isadore Bellis of Philadelphia; Chester and Bill Murphy of the University of Chicago; Archie Henderson, University of North Carolina, and Bill Talbert, University of Cincinnati.

College and Oranges

From the venerable and distinguished Santa Ana Register we take the liberty today of reprinting this fine example of corkscrew logic:

SUBSIDIZING ARIZONA AND TEXAS CITRUS FRUIT

Our political educators who contend that they make a profit on out-of-state students, who pay absolutely nothing for the right to attend Santa Ana Junior college and which costs the citizens of California $250 per pupil, are, in reality, subsidizing citrus fruit from Arizona and Texas and other agricultural products from other states.

This is true because the cost of this schooling is charged against the taxpayers in California so that the cost of their product is increased and the citrus growers from Arizona and Texas have a lower tax rate, by this amount, so that they can undersell us in these products.

And yet, we think we are educating our youth, when we have politicians at the head of schools who have such a theoretical conception of values and costs!

The implied suggestion that we should hang a gate across North Main street at the Santiago creek bridge and keep out all boys and girls who might want to attend our schools is contrary to the spirit of Southern California hospitality that has been created during the last half century and that is largely responsible for our present state of development.

Let the boys and girls come to Santa Ana, and the more the better. This community needs more studious, ambitious youth.

A slight difference one way or the other in the enrollment of the Santa Ana Junior college does not affect materially the cost of running the institution.

Here's an illustration that perhaps the Editor of The Register can understand. We will assume that a newspaper publisher spends $5000 a month to produce and distribute a newspaper with 2000 circulation. That represents a cost of $2.50 a subscriber. Following The Register's logic, a newspaper should refuse to accept another block of 500 paid subscribers at 75 cents a month each. We dare say that there is not a newspaper publisher in the nation who could not gladly add the 500.

Ten per cent increase in college enrollment or in newspaper circulation does not increase costs in either case by 10 per cent. The basic charges remain the same. The college does not necessarily have to employ more instructors, nor does the newspaper hire any more printers or reporters.

If The Register were able to force out of Santa Ana these "foreign" students the junior college could not reduce its expenses by a sum equal to its resultant loss in support from the state treasury. The state pays every junior college district a subsidy of $90 a year for each student. Kick out the "aliens" and you forfeit the $90 a student—and you won't cut materially the cost of running the junior college.

More than that, every youth from outside Orange county who attends the college spends money in Santa Ana business houses. They must eat, rent rooms, buy clothes.

Suppose that we barred out-of-community students from the junior college and did not collect the $90 a student from the state. Then what? Would that save the orange grower one-tenth of a cent a box in growing his fruit?

Truth of the matter is that The Register's editor, wandering in the maze of his intricate economic theories, is opposed to the erection of a junior college essential for a community of our size and wealth. The silly argument against out-of-state students is a smoke-screen attack on the real issue.

Most adults who live in Orange county came from some other community, including Ohio, and The Santa Ana Journal is opposed to a "verboten" sign to bar worthy Americans at our county line.

John Barrymore's mother-in-law gets divorce because her husband goes to sleep in theaters, one of the unalienable rights in the pursuit of happiness, by heck!

Vote, or Shut Up

It is customary for newspapers to print an editorial the day before election urging their readers to exercise their right and meet their obligations by voting.

Pretty trite most of these editorials are, we might as well add.

So we'll let it be sufficient to say that those who do not cast a ballot tomorrow really should forfeit their great American right to kick about the activities of the office-holders.

In other words, vote or keep still.

Japanese planes kill another thousand civilians in Hankow and suburbs. Mussolini, Hitler and Franco should cable congratulations.

Unfinished Picture-Story

While Hitler looks on at the great German war games of 1938, a Berlin newspaper is reprinting photographs of Kaiser Wilhelm, in that once-familiar spiked helmet, watching the maneuvers of 1913—the last big workout of the Imperial German army before the World war.

Perhaps it is too much to hope that the same paper will do the logical thing and reprint some 1918 pictures of the Kaiser hotfooting it for the border with his tail between his legs. And of the empty cupboards and teeming graveyards that were a part of the same story.

Nope, we're afraid Herr Goebbels would rather not bring that up.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Damon Runyon, sitting down to crack his knuckles the way he does before starting his daily story, took a look at a piece about the liquidation of W. M. C. Durant's art treasures and he hopped his 4 at the point where Old Man Durant said he had enjoyed living with these possessions for 30 years and had no regrets. Durant is the ex-millionaire who once, even twice, was commander-in-chief of General Motors, but was running a beanyery not so long ago.

Damon said Durant's feeling about the loss of material possessions reminded him of his old man's philosophy in such moments. Damon's old man was a printer and editor out around Kansas and Colorado, and Damon says that whenever he lost possession of something—whether his little house, the farm that came and went or his pet shotgun—the old man would say that the joy of possession compensated the financial write-off.

Indian Had To Hold Still

I guess my old man's feeling would have been about the same about material possessions if he had ever had any. He did take a claim to a quarter section of timber up around Hibbing, Minn., one time and put an Indian on it, according to the custom of those days, but the Indian jumped the fence and somebody came along to protest the claim on the ground that it wasn't being worked, and took it. According to the law, you had to settle on and work the piece yourself or get someone to do it for you, and it was common practice to get an Indian to build a cabin and putter around a little clearing between brannigans. But if your Indian didn't hold still you might not learn of his disappearance for six months or a year.

Anyway, the lumber barons probably would have flawed my old man's title later on even if he had closed it. They often did that. They were the law and the courts in the timber country, and if they couldn't trick you out of your place by changing the local map or finding a bug in your title they would flood, burn or shell you out.

Anyway, my old man didn't mind. He had done a little shooting in his timber and had felt the pleasure of nominal ownership for a spell, so it was all even with him. You know—easy go.

Less Causes Pang

As a reporter in the old get-the-story days in Minneapolis or Chicago he never was much bothered by accumulation, but there was rank and pride in the title of star reporter, and my old man was acknowledged a star by friend and foe. I am not writing of my old man in the past tense, please, but only of those days. My old man is still in action, writing the story of his life and a phase of this country's journalism which has been depicted in terms of external but never has had the benefit of an inside job. He didn't sneer at his work. He was in it and of it and played it with the abandon of a college football star.

I think the only pang my old man ever felt over a loss was along with various attempts to cloud his credit for the authorship of a melodrama of the white slave era called "Little Lost Sister." There is talk now of producing this show on Broadway after 25 years, in the supercilious mood of the recent presentations of "The Fireman's Bride" and "Broadway After Dark." My old man stands to get nothing out of this because he wrote the play in a week and sold it for $100 an act, cash on delivery, at a time when there was bad sickness in the family and he had to get money. I know he wrote it because I saw him write it, and I went with him the night he went down to deliver the last act and got the last of the money.

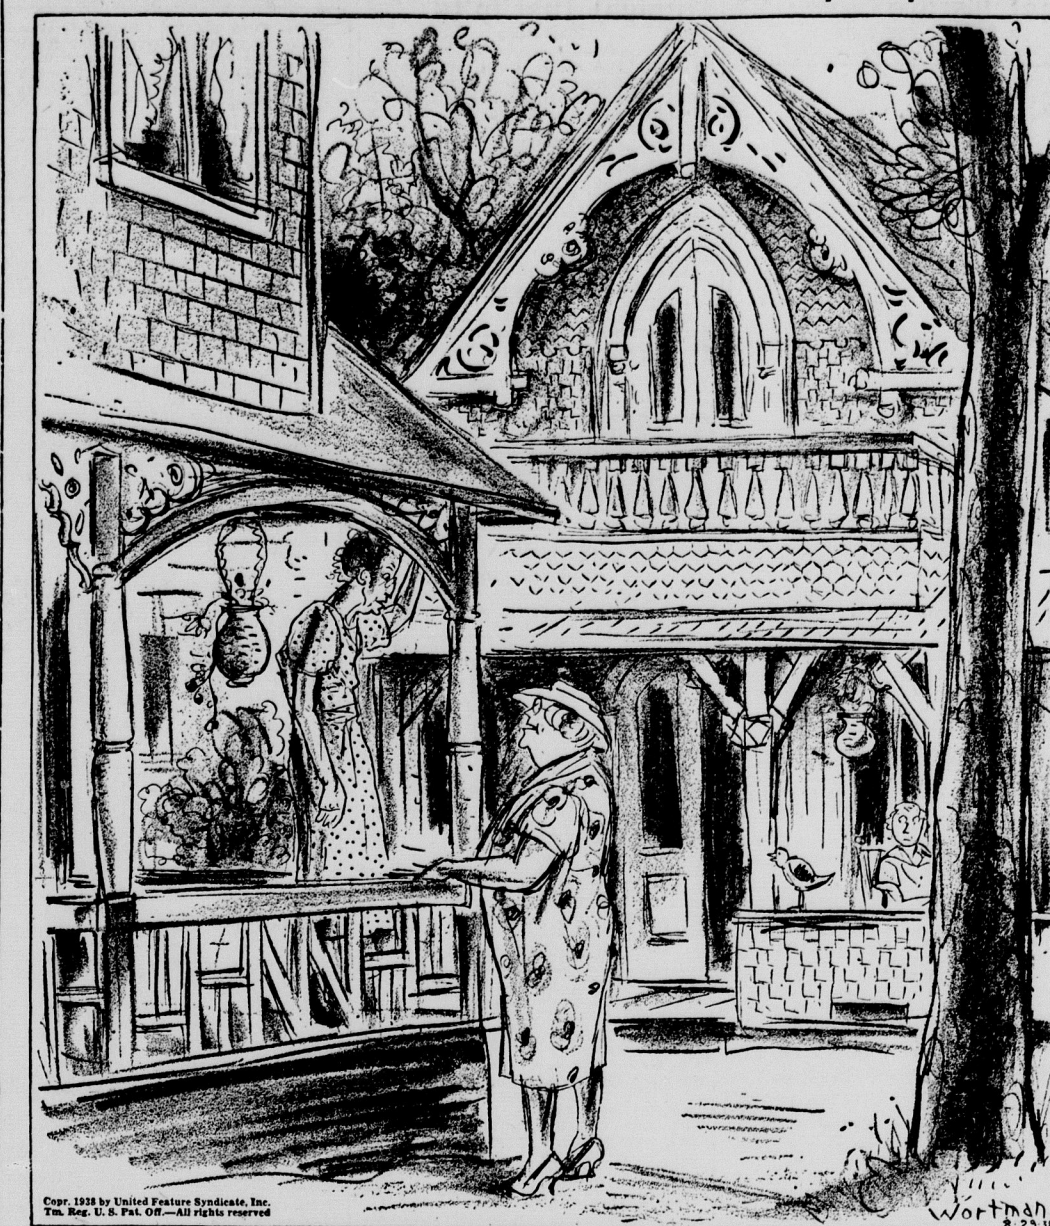

Well, it didn't seem much at the time, but it got its second wind after a while, and that play has been running, on the road as long as there was any road, in stock as long as there was any stock, in rep shows and on show boats on the Mississippi and the southern east coast ever since.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—Little Dave Dubinsky and his talented international Ladies' Garment Workers will soon be back in the American Federation of Labor.

They haven't finally broken with the CIO, but the break is coming. Notice of this was served by Dubinsky and a delegation of ILGWU leaders at a secret meeting with John L. Lewis. They informed him they were prepared to continue with the CIO on condition it agreed to certain concessions to establish peace with the A. F. of L.

Lewis rejected the suggested terms as death blows to his organization, and in effect told Dubinsky he was welcome to jump the CIO reservation at any time. Both sides parted friendly—but for good.

Dubinsky's meeting with Lewis is followed a secret confab several days before with William Green and AFL chiefs. Throughout the fierce CIO-AFL warring the AFL has carefully avoided taking any potshots at either Dubinsky or his union. A year ago, when the Federation expelled a group of the big unions that founded the CIO, the ILGWU was not on the list.

Dubinsky took a leading role in the abortive peace negotiations last fall. Later, he publicly blamed the CIO for the failure to get together. Lewis made no reply, but privately let him know that Dubinsky was not running the CIO and that anytime he and his union wanted to return to the AFL, it would cause no tears in the CIO camp.

Since then the CIO group has been expecting the break. The bolt will cost them 250,000 members, though they assert the ILGWU has been in arrears on its dues for many months.

Homey Henry
Here's a story Mrs. Wallace didn't want us to tell—until Henry got used to his new suit. Now he cannot take it back and the story can be told.

Wallace has a fondness for old, comfortable things, and Mrs. Wallace has a hard time persuading him to wear new clothes. She may even order a new suit, but it hangs unused in the closet.

One day, early this summer, she found a solution to her problem. She had the Negro butler, Edward Crockett, buy a suit closely resembling one of Henry's old ones in shade and texture. She instructed Edward to hang it in a place where the secretary of agriculture would see it.

The trap worked; Henry put on the new suit. Then he looked at it closely. "Edward," he said, "you've had my suit pressed, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir," said Edward. "Certainly did a good job," said Wallace.

Edward said no more, Wallace wore the suit, and Mrs. Wallace was happy. But she cautioned Edward not to breathe a word about their ruse, lest Henry should discard the new suit and look for the old one.

Primary Furge
People talk about the primary purge as if it were plotted with all the secret cunning of the Nazi or OGPU police.

Actually, however, it is conducted on a basis so haphazard that it is laughable to those who don't want it to succeed and may be tragic to those at the top whose political reputations are at stake.

Instead of being manipulated by a cabal of arch conspirators, real fact is that Secretary Ickes, supposed to be one of them, has been in Alaska; Tom Corcoran, supposed to be another, is at Bar Harbor, Maine; Harry Hopkins, supposed to be the man who sharpens the axe, has been visiting his daughter in New York state; and the president has been in Hyde Park and fishing.

Instead of heads rolling in the sand, heels have been hiked to vacation resorts.

The purge, beyond any question, exists, but it is conducted with the same nonchalance and happy-go-lucky inefficiency which characterizes a lot of other New Deal enterprises.

Speed King Orator
Congressman Davey Lewis, 69-year-old candidate against young "Milord" Tydings in the Maryland senatorial campaign, performed a remarkable feat of radio oratory recently.

Almost immediately after Tydings had delivered a 30-minute harangue against Roosevelt's attack on him, Lewis went on the air in reply. Tydings had spent five days preparing his speech, Lewis had only two hours.

He listened to the Tydings broadcast, then dictated his own 30-minute reply. The stenographer had not finished typing it down when Lewis went on the air, and the speech had to be handed to him sheet by sheet as he sat before the microphone.

He had not had time to proof read or practice, but he put across his speech in a manner which got an equal news break with Tydings.

O LOSS
During the summer one woman visited another who had a fine collection of roses. They went out into the garden to see them—white roses, yellow roses, red roses, climbing roses, and roses in pots. The owner began plucking right and left. Some bushes with but a single flower she despoiled.

Her friend remonstrated, "You are robbing yourself!"

"Ah," the other replied, "do you not know that the way to have rose bushes bear is to pluck their flowers freely? I lose nothing by what I give away."

REASON
The Duke of Devonshire was once asked by a rather ostentatious contemporary why he invariably traveled third class, considering he was reputed to be such a rich man, as well as of the so-called "cream" of British nobility.

"Simply because there happens to be no fourth," was the swift reply.

ON HIS WAY
Father: "Isn't it time you were entertaining the prospect of matrimony?"

Daughter: "Not quite, Dad. He won't be here until 8 o'clock."—Pearson's.

TEMPERANCE NOTE
"Which does most damage, fire or water?"

"Both."

"What do you mean?"

"Firewater!"

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, well-aimed criticism of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag. Please limit communications to 350 words. The editor reserves the right to shorten all letters in excess of that length.

PARKING CHARGES

To the Editor: Innkeepers are required by law to post in plain sight the price of their rooms. Is there any reason why owners of garages and parking lots should not be required to post the price of parking?

I drove into a Los Angeles parking lot and since the price was not posted I asked and was told that it was the same as charged across the street but the price wasn't posted there and I was told that it was 25¢. However, when I returned for my car an attempt was made to charge me 35¢. I didn't get cheated but others may be less fortunate and the posting of the price should prevent all attempts at this kind of chiseling.

FOOLS RUSH IN, HE SAYS

To the Editor: When in this county of ours are we going to allow free speech as guaranteed by the National Constitution?

It looks to me as if a pamphlet trying to keep certain men from office is published and distributed a lot of "fools rush in" and arrest them and sue for slander when the voters should be the ones to read everything for and against every candidate. If anyone running for office has had record I want to know about it. The candidate may, of course, deny it and even prove it false but should not have the right to make an arrest.

ONE FOR CORRIGAN

To the Editor: Might write in and tell Douglas to pin this in his hat:

Off again, wrong again;
Home again, Corrigan.

Science News

Imagine asking a hard-boiled criminal to look at an ink blot and tell what he sees in it. It sounds rather fanciful, but it is actually being done as a study of delinquency, and here is why:

A Swiss psychiatrist, Dr. Hermann Rorschach, found some years ago that a clue to understanding the personality of mentally sick persons might be gained by learning what their imaginations let them see in ink blots. You have probably noticed yourself, as many normal persons have, that a chance blot of ink on your blotting pad looks like a butterfly or a witch or a cat or some other object or creature. Dr. Rorschach believed that the sort of objects seen in ink blots depend on one's personality. Shy, imaginative persons might see romantic, poetic objects in ink blots, and matter-of-fact persons might see more prosaic objects in the blots. So he devised and attempted to standardize an ink blot test which many psychiatrists now use, calling it by his name.

Dr. M. J. Pescor of the U. S. Public Health Service, as he says in his recent report, "intrigued by the possibility of using it as a routine procedure in studying the mental make-up of delinquent individuals."

"Incidentally," he added, "experimentation might also reveal whether it is really a test or merely a crystal ball in which the examiner may read whatever he wants to believe about his patient."

Consequently he gave the test to 500 prisoners who had been admitted to the U. S. Northeastern Penitentiary during an eleven months' period, and studied the results to see, first, whether the age of the tested person had any bearing on his score.

The age of the prisoners ranged from 17 to 77 years with average of 33.4 years, but the age factor, he concluded, is of no statistical significance in Rorschach Test performance, so far as delinquents are concerned. He did find a tendency for older men to choose original responses and for the younger men to select vulgar replies.

AND HOW!

The alert Shelby (Ala.) Democrat reports the case of a man who was defeated ignominiously when he ran for the office of sheriff.

He got 55 votes out of a total of 3500 and the next day he walked down Main street with two guns hanging from his belt.

"You were not elected, and you have no right to carry guns," fellow citizens told him.

"Listen, folks," he replied, "a man with no more friends than I've got in this county needs to carry guns."—American Mercury.

I'LL TELL YOU....

By BOB BURNS

A lot of people have asked me if I would like to go back over the ground I have covered so I could do some things different. I guess I'm a whole lot like my Uncle Hod. He says, "The most timid animal in the world is the rabbit and he backtracks." Uncle Hod wouldn't cage anything for anybody. He simply says, "Here it is and you can make the most of it."

One day when he was awfully tired, he walked into a barber shop and slumped down in the chair and says, "Give me a shave." The barber looked at him and says, "You're slumped down too far in the chair for me to shave you." Without movin', Uncle Hod says, "All right, then—gimme a haircut!"

CARNEGIE'S
Day

Philosophy

I've had a letter on my desk for more than a week. I look at it, and put it down, for I don't know what to reply to it. It's from a grandmother. The subject is spanking. The grandmother says that her daughter has a child who is being badly spoiled through lack of proper discipline. Here's part of the letter:

"The other day my daughter told my granddaughter not to play at my daughter's writing-desk in the little side room. As I see it, this was a definite command. Well, Margie (the grandchild) disobeyed her mother. She went to the kitchen, got some cocoa, and a bit later she put this in the bottle of ink. Of course, the ink was ruined. But I think it ruined something else, discipline. This was the culmination of many minor disobediences. I took the punishment which she should be spanked. Margie should be spanked. And being the mother, she had her way."

"You may smile at this letter, but really this matter of discipline in our family is serious and it is important. I see many families with self-willed, spoiled children, and it is mostly through lack of a firm hand over them. Children of my day were spanked. And they were better behaved than the children of today. 'Spare the rod and spoil the child' has lots to it. Now, Mr. Carnegie, don't you think Margie should be spanked? Isn't it far better to spank her than to talk the wits out of a child?"

Frankly, I don't know what to say. One reason is that I've never had any children. I was the younger son in our family and I have never been around children very much.

Now to my point: Should children of this day and age be spanked? Is a spanking harmful or helpful?

I am addressing this to those who have fallen into the habit of hiring only young people. Consider the man who stands within the shadow of 50. If your work is such that either a young man or an older man has qualifications for it, why not give the older man a chance to compete with youth?

After writing the above, I picked up the newspaper and found an appeal along the same line sent out by the oldest governor in the United States, Governor W. L. Cross of Connecticut. He is 76, and one of the best governors Connecticut ever has had.

Elbert Hubbard, who knew the value of true friendship, said: "The only way to secure friends is to be one. Friendship only hopes to serve, and it grows by giving. It lends ballast to life and gives steadiness to every venture."

Without our friends, life would be very empty. Let's appreciate them as we go along. Let's excuse their faults and praise their virtues.

AIN'T IT SO?

To the well-intentioned rebuke, Will replied: "Maybe ain't ain't so correct, but I notice lots of folks who ain't using it, ain't eatin'!"
